- Most people never do this!

Deep Sense of Purpose = great joy and fulfilment = the impossible becomes possible for you!

You Have 2 Types of Life Purpose:

- 1. Your Overall Purpose as a Human Being
 - 2. Your Own Unique Individual Purpose(s)

High Performance Tool – Purpose Mastery Questions

The World's Highest Performers are remarkably purpose-driven in how they live and lead...

1. How purposeful have you felt in the past 3 months? (rate yourself 1-10)
2. What would you need to do to feel you are living with greater purpose?
3. Have you ever felt off-purpose in your life for a prolonged period of time?
4. If so, what was happening then?
5. When you are feeling purposeful during your day, how would you describe it?
6. Do you feel the people in your life now understand what your purpose is and relate to it? If you don't, you won't share or ask for help when you need it.
7. Is there anyone in your life who seems to be off their own purpose?
8. If so, who and how could you help them?

High Performance Tool – Defining and Leading Our Purpose

Defining our life's purpose in a singular statement is often regarded as a 'must-do' activity in personal development.

The challenge is that you can have different purposes in different parts of your life (you might have one in your relationship and another in your career) and in different times in your life.

Unfortunately, too many people also obsess about their life's single purpose and simply don't realize living each day with purpose and meaning is the ultimate goal regardless of whether you're clear on an overall life plan and purpose.

Still, having a singular statement in mind can sharpen your focus and remind you of what's important.

Create Your Own Major Life Purpose / Mission Statement – PART 2

Once you have your purpose statement, start sharing it with others - when they see you living and role modelling your purpose, they're inspired to do the same.

In defining your purpose statement, a few things to consider:

1. The statement can be as much about "being" as "doing."

For example, part of Brendon Burchard purpose statement is "be fully alive and vibrant", which has nothing to do with a career or goal-oriented objective.

The things I'd like my purpose statement to remind me to be include...

2. The statement can have 'to do' items that aren't career focused.

Brendon's includes, "to adore and appreciate my loved ones," which again is not something that is career related.

Even in addressing career or ambitions. Brendon's "to do" item is to "strengthen and share my gifts," another broad statement.

Though everyone tells you to be super specific about what you want (which is great in goal-setting), purpose statements that are a bit more broad in scope help us focus on what's really important in a variety of contexts.

The things I'd like my purpose statement to remind me to include...

3. The statement might also have a "so that" element that describes why you want to be and do all these things as part of your purpose.

For example, Brendon's statement ends with "so that I might inspire others to live more fully, love more openly, and make a greater difference today."

The why or "so that" reason that I want to be and do the things I wrote above is...

Now tie together your answers 1-3 in one statement.

Brendon's is, "The purpose of my life is to be fully alive and vibrant, to adore and appreciate my loved ones, and to strengthen and share my gifts so that I might inspire others to live more fully, love more openly, and make a greater difference today."

Write your own statement here...

In order to lead and inspire others in finding their own purpose in their lives or careers, I could begin a habit of...
